A vocal recital of the pupils of Professor Otto T. Simon was given at Norwood Institute, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Cabell principals, on Friday evening, December 19. The young ladies taking the solo parts sang with great purity of tone, and the choruses were effectively purity of tone, and the choruses were effectively rendered. The following is the programme: Chorus, "The May Bells," Mendelssohn; song, "Birds of the Night," Sullivan, Miss Scott; song, "Lascia ch'io piangu," Handel, Miss Hatcher; song, "Barcarolle," Gounod, Miss Stoner; song, "Still as the Night," Bohm, Mrs. Otto T. Simon; chorus, "Ave Maria," Mendelssohn; song, "Embarrassment," Abt, Miss Scott; song, "Who is Sylvia?" Schubert, Miss Snook; song, "The Clover Blossoms Kiss Thy Feet," Vogrich, Miss Stoner; song, "Reveries," Rubenstein, Miss Otto T. Simon; chorus, waltz song, stein, Miss Otto T. Simon; chorus, waltz song, Wekerlin. Professor Simon, recently appointed instructor of vocal music at Norwood Institute, was a pupil of Emil Behnke, of London, England, one of the best known of modern voice teachers, and co-author with Dr. Lennox Brown of "Voice, Song, and Speech," in which the voice is considered from the standpoint of voice trainer, scientiest, and physician. Mr. Simon has recently published a work on vocal physiology and laryngoscopic investigation as val-uable adjuncts to voice training.

Quite a galaxy of artists were heard in New York on Monday night at the benefit concert of the well-known barit notably Campanini, who made his second appearance in public after recovering his voice, while Miss Marie Decca scored the most brilliant honors of the evening. The New York World's critic says of her: "MissDecca is a remarkable singer. She is fair and graceful and of beautiful stage presence. She has a phenomenally pure and brillant voice, and but for a degree of nervousness would take her place among the most brilliant of singers. She sang the brilliant aria "Le Mysoli from Le Terle du Bresil," with flute obligate, and the grand "Queen of Night" aria from Mozart's "Magic Flute." She astonished her audience by the flute-like clearness and purity of her high notes, the intelligence of her phrasing, and the deep beauty of her expression, while her staccato passages were clear and true, her trills and cadenzas delicate and artistic. In "Eckert's Swiss Echo Song" no more beautiful and artistic rendering could be imagined."
